

Product Manager

We're a passionate team of engineers, real estate professionals, and business people making it easier for real estate agents to navigate the sales process. A proptech platform started in Australia by agents, for agents – Realtair aims to automate and streamline the steps from appraisal to settlement and equip agents with mobile, easy-to-use technology. Our industry-leading platform provides integrated solutions to connect agents with better and more efficient means of doing business every day.

An exciting and rare opportunity to join the team during this period of growth and being a part of Realtair as we mature from a small startup to global leaders within the proptech industry. Reporting to the Product Lead, the Product Manager role works with a group of highly skilled individuals helping to drive deliverables to achieve objectives and continually looking at opportunities to improve our products and services.

About You

- You must be flexible and willing to be hands on to get the job done
- Be detail-oriented and results-driven
- Ability to work collaboratively with other teams across Realtair to ensure delivery

The Product Manager is responsible for:

- Drive processes and engagement across multiple products
- Collaborate with Product Managers to craft a good product roadmap that maximizes value in relation to his/her domain (agent, consumer, transaction)
- Develop, monitor and report on usage and adoption rates, performance quality and other product related metrics
- Work with customers (agents) to gather requirements in order to identify product gaps and work with development teams to improve offerings

Experience

- Experience in a similar role
- Experience leading a team (remote or offshore)
- Experience managing SAAS products in a Business-to-Business setting is a plus
- Strong background in Agile Product Management
- Strong background in data-driven decision making
- Experience in Real Estate or PropTech industry is preferred but not required

What we offer

- A flexible environment with an opportunity to work remotely
- Commitment to professional and personal growth and development, including career progression opportunities
- To be a part of a market leading organisation and work alongside some of the most exceptional people in the industry

If this sounds like you, we'd love to hear from you. We have team members all over the country and around the world. The right candidate would have the opportunity to work at our NSW office locations or remotely from other locations across Australia.

Please apply via the link or submit your applications to jobs@realtair.com