

Technology Lead

We're a passionate team of engineers, real estate professionals, and business people making it easier for real estate agents to navigate the sales process. A proptech platform started in Australia by agents, for agents – Realtair aims to automate and streamline the steps from appraisal to settlement and equip agents with mobile, easy-to-use technology. Our industry-leading platform provides integrated solutions to connect agents with better and more efficient means of doing business every day.

An exciting and rare opportunity to join the team during this period of growth and being a part of Realtair as we mature from a small startup to global leaders within the proptech industry. Reporting to the CTO, the Technology Lead works with a group of highly skilled individuals and would provide guidance, support and overall leadership for the tech team. Helping to drive deliverables to achieve objectives and continually looking at opportunities to improve our products and services.

About You

- You must be flexible and willing to be hands on to get the job done
- Be detail-oriented and results-driven
- Ability to communicate and lead the global team effectively

The Technology Lead is accountable for:

- Realtair's technology delivery and scalability globally
- Oversee system design and architecture to ensure we are best practice and it is future proof
- Drive security best practices across team
- Oversee infrastructure design and implementation for performance, reliability, scalability and cost management
- Provide direction and advice to RT R&D team
- Build a strong and cohesive development team culture
- Overall accountability for set team OKRs

Experience

- Experience in a similar role
- Experience leading a team (remote or offshore)
- A strong background with security
- Strong experience with
 - Scaling technology and infrastructure
 - System design and architecture
 - C# & React
 - AWS technologies

What we offer

- A flexible environment with an opportunity to work remotely
- Commitment to professional and personal growth and development including career progression opportunities
- To be a part of a market leading organisation and work alongside some of the most exceptional people in the industry
- If this sounds like you, we'd love to hear from you. We have team members all over the country and around the world. The right candidate would have the opportunity to work at our NSW office locations or remotely from other locations across Australia.

Please apply via the link or submit your applications to jobs@realtair.com