

UX Lead

We're a passionate team of engineers, real estate professionals, and business people making it easier for real estate agents to navigate the sales process. A proptech platform started in Australia by agents, for agents – Realtair aims to automate and streamline the steps from appraisal to settlement and equip agents with mobile, easy-to-use technology. Our industry-leading platform provides integrated solutions to connect agents with better and more efficient means of doing business every day.

An exciting and rare opportunity to join the team during this period of growth and being a part of Realtair as we mature from a small startup to global leaders within the proptech industry. Reporting to the CTO, this newly created role is about designing and driving accessible and meaningful experiences at the highest quality for our customers. Being creative, having the ability to draw on previous experiences and coming with ideas and perspectives to ensure we are leading the market in this space.

About You

- You must be flexible and willing to be hands on to get the job done
- Be detail-oriented and results-driven
- Ability to shape the UX journey in a high growth period and beyond
- Capability to deliver and communicate best practice UX strategy and approach

The UX Lead is responsible for:

- Creating cohesive design across our platform
- Understand user personas and craft experiences around them
- Build UX framework and culture at Realtair
- Ability to use data to ensure consistent improvement

Experience

- Experience in a similar role
- Strong UX and UI experience
- Experience with participating in UX discovery and research activities
- Experience working on a portfolio of connected products, and experience in Business-to-Consumer products is a plus
- Development tools experience including;
 - Figma
 - Mixpanel

What we offer

- A flexible environment with an opportunity to work remotely
- Commitment to professional and personal growth and development, including career progression opportunities
- To be a part of a market leading organisation and work alongside some of the most exceptional people in the industry

If this sounds like you, we'd love to hear from you. We have team members all over the country and around the world. The right candidate would have the opportunity to work at our NSW office locations or remotely from other locations across Australia.

Please apply via the link or submit your applications to jobs@realtair.com